The area is also notable for its lush waterfalls and the reclining Buddha statue, making it a popular pilgrimage site for both locals and tourists.

Banteay Srei: Banteay Srei, meaning "Citadel of Women," is a stunning temple complex located approximately 30 kilometers northeast of Angkor. Built in the 10th century, it is renowned for its exquisite pink sandstone carvings and intricate detailing, which depict various Hindu deities and mythological scenes. Often considered one of the jewels of Khmer architecture, Banteay Srei showcases the artistic prowess of its builders and is a must-visit for anyone exploring the Angkor region.

Pre Rup: Pre Rup is a temple mountain located just east of Angkor, built in the late 10th century during the reign of King Rajendravarman II. Known for its impressive brick and sandstone construction, Pre Rup was originally dedicated to the Hindu god Shiva. The temple is particularly famous for its stunning sunset views, as visitors can climb to the top and witness the sun setting over the surrounding landscape, creating a magical atmosphere that captures the essence of the ancient Khmer civilization.
